

The ProSPER.Net community has been discussing how to engage with mobility programmes over the past six months, looking for ways postgraduate students, faculty, and researchers can engage with different universities around the region. The following institutions have shared with us a variety of opportunities for collaboration between member universities. We would like to share some of these promising opportunities below.

Are you interested in recruiting post-graduate students from around the Asia-Pacific Region?

Would you like to co-supervise students from other universities?

Interested in attracting visiting faculty from other institutions in the region for teaching and research?

If so, you are encouraged to provide the ProSPER.Net Secretariat with similar information to share with the network.

For more information on individual mobility programmes please check each university separately.

Hokkaido University

University of Peradeniya

Miyagi University of Education

RMIT University

Prince of Songkla University